

Becoming a LeadIT member

The Leadership Group for Industry Transition (LeadIT) is a group of countries, companies and other actors who are:

- Committed to action to achieve the Paris Agreement
- Subscribed to the notion that all sectors of industry can and must progress on low carbon pathways, while pursuing efforts to reach net-zero carbon emissions by mid-century
- Dedicated to international and public-private collaboration that demonstrates feasibility of net-zero pathways, and spurs others to accelerated action and increasing ambition

Benefits and expectations

Benefits of being a LeadIT member include:

- Setting the international agenda on industry transition
- Visibility as a leader on industry transition
- Learning from the experience of other industry transition leaders
- Networking with key actors in industry transition (countries, companies, international and multilateral organizations, financial institutions)
- Membership of the LeadIT Technical and Expert Committee
- Membership of LeadIT working groups
- Participation in LeadIT meetings, seminars and summits
- Receive support for, and have opportunity to contribute to, local or thematic industry transition dialogues
- Priority inclusion of relevant strategies and roadmaps in the Transition Tracker
- Support for developing industry transition roadmaps

LeadIT members are expected to:

- Commit to the goals and objectives of LeadIT
- Attend LeadIT TEC meetings and, as appropriate, LeadIT working groups
- Contribute to LeadIT activities, such as workshops and seminars
- Actively engage with the LeadIT Secretariat and LeadIT members to share information about their activities on industry transition
